

Louisiana Legislature Adopts Resolution To Bury Long Near Capitol

Body of Assassinated Dictator Will Lie in State in Rotunda of Capitol; His Friends Will Act as Pallbearers.

FUNERAL THURSDAY

Crowds Pour Into Baton Rouge to Attend Funeral Rites for the Slain Leader.

Baton Rouge, La., Sept. 11 (AP)—The Louisiana legislature today adopted a resolution recommending burial of Senator Huey P. Long on the beautifully landscaped grounds of the state capitol.

The resolution, expressing the grief and regret of the lawmakers at Long's passing, was approved by the House of Representatives unanimously with no discussion.

There was informal suggestion by some friends that the body be interred under the state house rotunda, in a marble crypt.

This stunned capital city, scene of his unprecedented rise to domination in an American state, of his legislative coups that made him a dictator, of his use of the militia to enforce his will, turned out to pay homage to his bier and give him a leader's burial.

The rotunda of the ornate $5,000,000 state capitol, which he built to a height of 33 stories when governor, was chosen as the place for his body to lie in state, surrounded by a guard of honor of national guardsmen and 24 of his beloved Louisiana State University Cadets, from 1 p. m. (central standard time) today until time for the funeral at 4 p. m. tomorrow.

To Be Buried On Lawn. He will be buried on the state house lawn, in the slim, graceful shadow of the capitol.

Services will be in charge of the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, a leader in Senator Long's country-wide "share-no-wealth" movement. The clergyman was close by when Dr. Carl A. Weiss, Jr., Baton Rouge physician, mortally wounded the senator and was riddled with bullets by Long's bodyguards.

Site on the capitol grounds for the burial place will be selected by a committee of the legislature. This was the final day of a special legislative session called to act on bills presented to it at the senator's bidding before he was shot down.

None but members of Senator Long's family and close friends were permitted to view the body before it was removed under a heavy guard of state police from a funeral home to the capitol.

Impressive Funeral. Long's associates planned to make his funeral one of the most impressive in Louisiana's history.

It was officially announced today that the pallbearers will be Governor O. K. Allen, Lieutenant Governor James A. Noel, Seymour Weiss of New Orleans, Robert S. Maestri, state commissioner of conservation, Allen S. Ellender, speaker of the house, and John B. Fournet, justice of the state supreme court.

Earl J. Christenberry, of the funeral arrangements committee, said there would be no formal procession from the funeral parlors to the rotunda of the capitol where the senator's body was to be brought to lie in state.

Arrangements were in the hands of the senator's closest friends, headed by Governor Allen, to whom the Long leaders have turned for temporary leadership in the crisis brought on by the assassination.

In Washington, Senators Caraway of Arkansas, Overton of Louisiana, Thomas of Oklahoma and Schall of Minnesota were named to represent their colleagues at the funeral. The Senate and House buildings were lowered to half staff. They will fly there until the burial.

Crowds in Baton Rouge. Hundreds of persons poured into Baton Rouge, taking hotels and private dwellings to accommodate the throngs.

The inquest called to establish the cause of Senator Long's death resulted in a verdict from the East Baton Rouge parish coroner's jury that he "came to his death from gunshot wounds of a homicidal character."

As is customary in Louisiana, the verdict did not fix responsibility for the act.

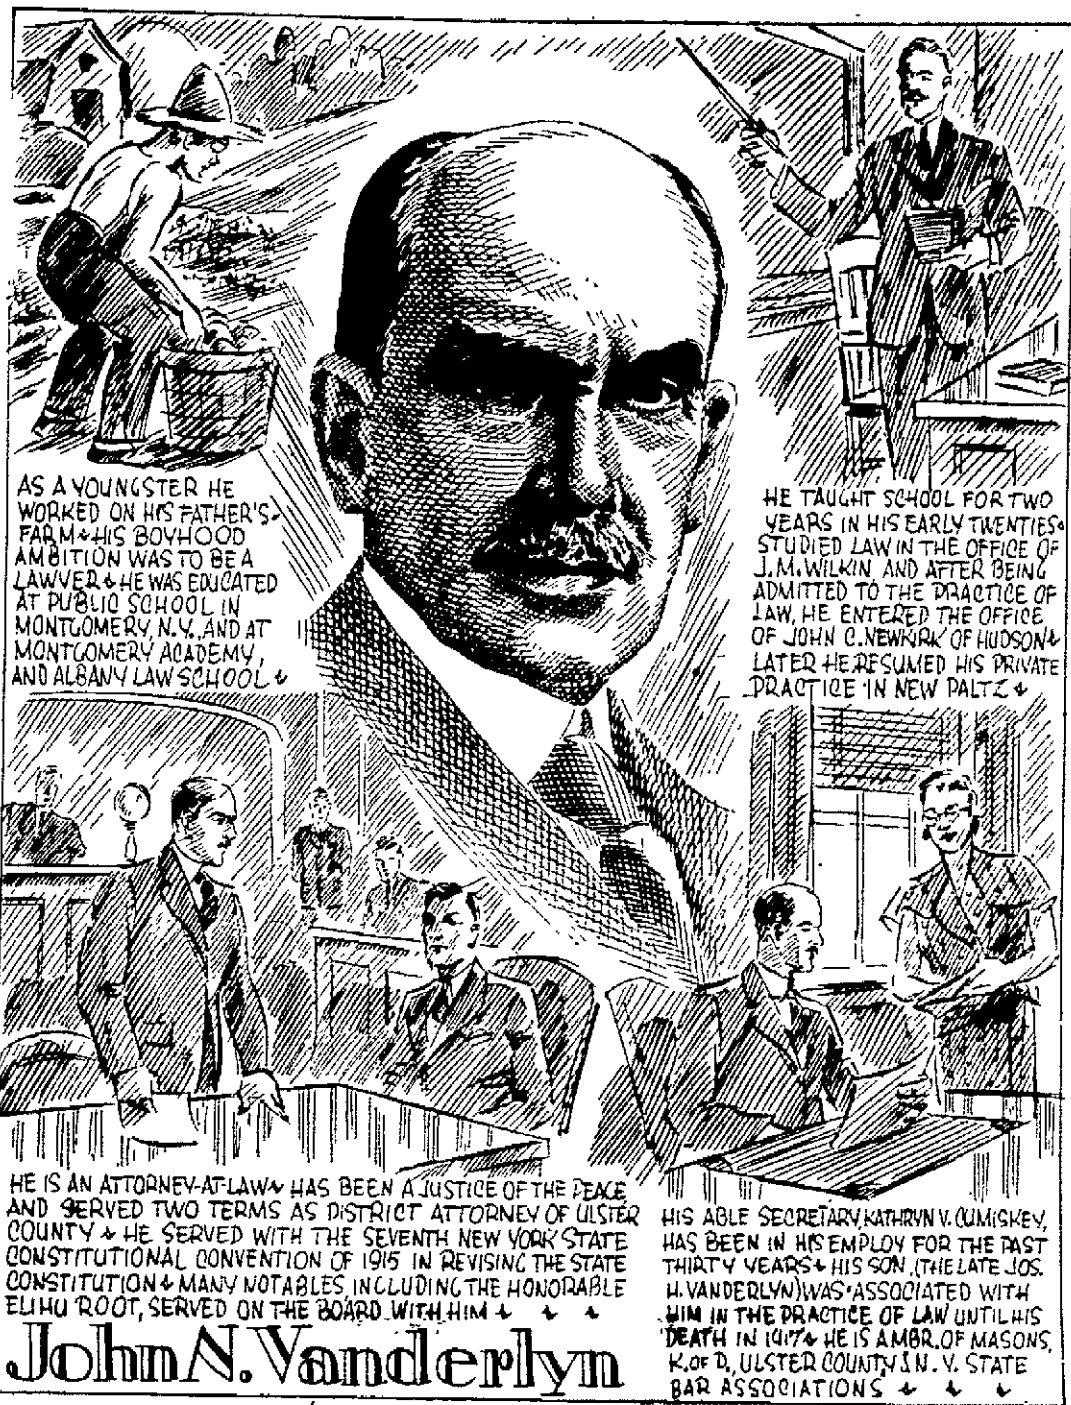

Inability to round up the bodyguards who pumped their guns into Dr. Weiss until they had riddled him with sixty-one bullet holes, forced postponement until next week of the inquest into the specialist's death. The general impression among officials was that the bodyguards would be absolved.

See Child Killed, 3 Hurt

Kalamazoo, Mich., Sept. 11 (AP)—Mrs. Harry Wright, frantically waving her overcoat to attract the attention of the oncoming train, saw a freight train strike her stalled automobile last night and fatally injure one of her four small children, in the vehicle. Evelyn, eight years old, died a few hours after the accident. Beverly, 10, Robert, 5, and Florence, 4, were hurt as the locomotive carried the car hundreds of feet down the track. Ivan Graff's Auto Crashed Into Traffic Light Pole at Washington and Lucas Avenues Last Night—Other Cases in Police Court.

Tuesday evening about 9 o'clock a Chevrolet car driven by Ivan Graff, 59, of Stanfordville, crashed into the traffic signal pole at Washington and Lucas avenues. The police who were called placed Mr. Graff under arrest on a charge of public intoxication, and had his car towed to the Eagle Garage.

This morning in police court Mr. Graff pleaded guilty to the charge. Judge Walter H. Gill called Graff's attention to the fact that the Board of Public Works had estimated the damage to the traffic light at $43, and asked him if he was ready to make good the amount of damage.

Mr. Graff said he was without funds at this time to make good the amount of damage to the traffic light, and Judge Gill suspended imposition of sentence until Friday to give him an opportunity to raise the $43.

Joseph Boida, a negro of Cedar street, arrested at 2:30 o'clock this morning on Delaware avenue on a charge of public intoxication, entered a plea of not guilty. He said he had been taken suddenly ill with a ruptured appendix. An adjournment was taken until Friday and bail fixed at $5.

Hurley Board Rescinds Action

The town board of Hurley in special session, Tuesday, rescinded the action of the night before that made Attorney Roger H. Loughran acting supervisor during the incapacity of Supervisor Matthew T. E. DeWitt.

Now the situation in Hurley is as it was prior to the meeting at which Attorney Loughran was chosen to act for Mr. DeWitt who has been ill for some time. He was absent from the meeting of the Ulster County Board of Supervisors last week.

After he had been chosen, Attorney Loughran said he was of the opinion that he could not serve because of holding an office as justice of the peace in Hurley. He requested the town board to rescind its action.

Supervisor DeWitt, a Democrat, in his capacity as chairman of the town board, Michael Joyce is the only other Democratic member. The others are Charles Tiller, Clarence Orsander and Minard Elmendorf, Republicans.

Hoare's Speech Seen As Warning To Italy Not To Reject Peace Hope

Geneva, Sept. 11 (AP)—Great Britain threw its whole weight behind the League of Nations' "covenant in its entirety" in a declaration of policy by Sir Samuel Hoare, British foreign minister, before the league assembly today.

At the same time, Sir Samuel warned the world that if the league fails to enforce a peaceful settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute the "main bridge" binding England to the continent will have collapsed.

The bold pledge to back the covenant "in its entirety" was interpreted as an indication that Great Britain will not shrink from sanctions if these become necessary to quench the African blaze.

The Italian delegates immediately interpreted the speech as a British "threat to quit the league unless the league obeys England."

Even the phrase "British blackmail" was heard in Italian delegation circles.

The delegates of small nations, however, generally hailed the British diplomat's speech with enthusiasm.

The delegate of one prominent neutral country said later that the blunt British declaration was not to be interpreted as an ultimatum to Premier Mussolini, but rather as an emphatic warning to Italy to think twice before rejecting the "last hope" compromise likely to be offered soon to Il Duce.

What irritated the Italians particularly was a veiled attack by Hoare on the Fascist regime when, referring to the dangerous features of government propaganda, he said:

"Too often, artificial excitement of national feeling is made the excuse for the repudiation of obligations or for a threat of force."

Sir Samuel suggested a peaceful reorganization of the distribution of the world colonial and raw materials, but it was "too vague to be interesting."

"We believe," said Sir Samuel in outlining the position of the British empire, "that backward nations are, without prejudice to their independence and integrity, entitled to expect that assistance will be afforded them by more advanced peoples in the development of their resources and the building up of their national life."

Collective Maintenance. The British statesman declared Great Britain stands for the collective maintenance of the League of Nations covenant in its entirety and particularly for the steady, collective resistance to all acts of unprovoked aggression. His statement was a clear allusion to the Italo-Ethiopian crisis.

Baron Pompeo Aloisi of Italy, sitting in the center of the hall, listened intently.

A suit of excitement ran through the auditorium when Sir Samuel said that a spirit of war, "even of war for war's sake," has "raised its head in more places than one."

The British foreign minister declared slowly and earnestly that it changes must come, they must come "by consent, not dictation; by peaceful means, not war or threat of war."

Sir Samuel said that calm, dispassionate consideration was impossible "in an atmosphere of war, threatening of war."

"If only these war clouds could be dispelled, with how much greater effect could we turn to those economic questions that often matter so much more in the modern world than in the political problems."

Hawariate Speaks

Teale Hawariate, the diminutive Ethiopian delegate, addressed the assembly in the afternoon in fluent French, pleading for the continued independence of Ethiopia.

As he spoke, Baron Pompeo Aloisi, the head of the Italian delegation, sat by in an attitude of studied indifference.

Hawariate said that he planned to say nothing which would aggravate the situation between his country and Italy. He described Ethiopia as a developing help for her development provided that help was disinterested.

"We are a Christian people," said Hawariate. "Our independence is sacred. Yet we have given proof of our humility."

"Before any menace or any attacks, Ethiopia will associate herself with the ideals of the League of Nations."

Judge Tracy Meets With Usual Success In County Court Here

Judge Tracy, presiding at the September term of county court, met with the usual success in trying to get the civil matters started. A day calendar of two cases collapsed when one case was not ready for trial and was reserved and the second case resulted in judgment being taken by plaintiff after the defendants had made a motion to adjourn the matter. Nothing more being ready the court recessed until Monday next at 2 o'clock, at which time Judge Tracy will again attempt to get the civil work started. The day calendar for that date is:

No. 3, Adelbert H. Chambers and Leon E. Chambers, doing business as Styvebant Garage, against Fred D. Curre, negligence action.

No. 13, Ulster Fuel and Oil, Heat & Power Co., Inc., against Sophie W. and Felix Katz, action on contract.

No. 14, William Vandermark against Albert Dowe, an action for goods sold and delivered.

No. 18, Gladys Black against Benjamin Schechter, a negligence action.

No. 20, Morris Gershinovitz against Mike Belek, an action for assault.

No. 1, Irving Funk against George Schantz, a negligence action. Appellate from city court.

No. 28, Ezra Tappan against Nelson Donovan, an action on contract.

A default judgment was taken in No. 5, John Millic against Antonio, Grace and Angelina Friso, an action on contract. When the case was called H. A. Lent appeared for defendants and asked that an adjournment be taken until next Monday as his clients had gone to New York city and he was unable to locate them. This application was opposed by Lawrence Levine, who appeared for the plaintiff. After a discussion as to payment of motion costs and expenses of plaintiff and his witnesses in attending court, it was agreed that the plaintiff should proceed with the case and take a default judgment. The case was tried before the court without a jury.

Plaintiff John Millic of Astoria testified that he had on September 7, 1932, entered into a lease with the three defendants for taking over their farm in the town of Plattkill. The actual possession was to be given on November 1, 1932, and at the time of the signing of the lease $300 was paid as the first year's rent. A few days prior to November 1, 1932, plaintiff said he went to the place for the purpose of taking possession and at that time was informed that the place had been leased to another party and he was refused possession. Prior to taking the lease on the property, he testified, he had been employed as a bricklayer's helper at $5 a day and when he went to take possession of the farm he gave up his job. When he was refused possession of the farm he said he was unable to resume his work and he lost about two months' work. He asked for payment for this loss.

Judge Tracy directed judgment in the sum of $200 for the money paid for rent and which was not returned and also $126 and interest for loss of work.

Officials Have Worked Night and Day for Long Time to Shape Program

Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman Has Filed 103 Projects, Totalling $1,670,751.22 with the WPA for Approval.

LIST OF PROJECTS

Projects Include Work for Skilled and Unskilled Men and Women of the City.

Mayor C. J. Heiselman has sent to date to the Works Progress Administration at Albany 103 projects totalling $1,670,751.22, designed to provide work for 1,450 unemployed in the city for a period of one year.

The Works Progress Administration is the new agency created by Congress months ago when the sum of four billion dollars was appropriated to put the unemployed at work, but which has not yet functioned.

Many months have passed but New York city is the only city in the state that has been given any substantial allotment for the new work program. The program is designed to take employables off home relief and place them on the security work program.

Mayor Heiselman in making this list public, stated that he hoped that this WPA program, which has been so long delayed, will soon start. The mayor has made four trips to Albany recently in regard to projects and in an attempt to learn when the program will begin.

The projects submitted, which are listed below, cover important and necessary street, sewer, water, park, building and other improvements which will be of lasting value to the city of Kingston. They are similar in type to the useful kind of work undertaken as relief projects during the Heiselman administration, which were commended as being excellent in the report, dated August 15, of Governor Lehman's Commission on Unemployment Relief covering work projects of the public works type in the state of New York.

The projects submitted include work of supervisory, skilled, semi-skilled and common labor and clerical and white collared workers, male as well as female.

City officials have been working night and day for some time in order to accomplish this result. Engineers and architects have worked for months making surveys and preparing plans and maps.

Mayor Heiselman stated today that he was reasonably sure that if the projects as submitted are approved, Kingston could give employment to a substantial number of the city's unemployed without increasing the cost to the city of home and work relief over the city's cost for the current year.

Other New Projects. In addition to the projects already submitted, surveys have been made and project applications are now being prepared for the following additional work:

Sanitary sewers in the Wilbur section.
Converse street construction.
Elmo street reconstruction.
Tanners Hook paving.
Lounsbury Place Extension, grading.

South avenue, Hunter street, and miscellaneous sewer work.
In regard to the proposed airport, the mayor stated that he understood from Washington that the Department of Commerce would take charge of that work, and that the appropriation of an airport director for the state was expected in a few days, at which time an inspection by the federal work to be made of the proposed airport site.

The mayor also stated that $22,000 would be appropriated by the state for a study of the limits of the proposed airport, through traffic signs and that it had applied to the state for a state grant for the removal of Greenkill dam at the foot of Poughkeepsie to the widening of the Hudson river and upon expected a decision by Commissioner Brandt.

List of Projects Filed

The projects submitted are as follows:

"Canned" Blood Used To Aid Physicians In Transfusion Cases

Chicago, Sept. 11 (AP).—Experiments with canned blood, a contribution of the dead to help the living, were being conducted today at the University of Illinois Research Hospital.

The "canning" process, used in human transfusion cases in Russia for five years, will be tried out here first on dogs, Dean David John Davis, of the University Medical School, said.

Describing the technique he said, the blood of a healthy dog would be "canned" in glass containers in an electric refrigerator.

Another dog would be then bled to the point where a transfusion would be required to sustain life. He said the first dog's blood would be injected into the living animal's veins.

If results are the same as those obtained by Dr. S. S. Judin, chief surgeon at the Sklifasowsky Institute in Moscow, and his physiologist colleague, Dr. W. N. Schow, the weakened dog would regain his strength, Dean Davis said.

Hundreds of human lives have been saved in Russia through this innovation, Dean Davis declared on his return from a foreign tour.

Serious accident cases involving profuse bleeding are hurried to this hospital, he said.

Blood is taken only from bodies of persons who died suddenly, the Dean explained, to avoid infection. The blood is kept sterile, and is tested against disease before being classified as to type.

The "canning" is done within six or seven hours after death because the red corpuscles of the blood remain alive long after death. The blood can be used for transfusions three or four weeks later, Dean Davis said.

Advantages of "canned" blood, the Dean said, were:

Speed. The blood is on hand for immediate use. Time is saved by eliminating the necessity of hunting a blood donor of the required type.

Safety. An autopsy on the body from which the blood is taken reveals all hazard of transmission of disease through transfusion. Such a complete test is impossible on a living donor.

Cost. Price of blood required for each transfusion run from $15 to $50 and up. This item is eliminated by the use of "canned" blood.

"Flying Squadron" Planned
Washington, Sept. 11 (AP).—A flying squadron of 10 prominent Republican women, to create "an enthusiastic party spirit," was planned today by Mrs. Robert Lincoln Hoyal, director of the women's division of the Republican national committee.

As the Republican women set about to strengthen their lines for the forthcoming presidential campaign, Postmaster General James A. Farley, fresh from his vacation trip to Hawaii, expressed the opinion President Roosevelt would be renominated by instructed delegations and re-elected without trouble.

In his death Will Rogers played his last joke upon congressmen and the statesmen at Washington. He died before the so-called rich bill could become a law, and his estate escapes its levies. Even so, under existing federal taxes, it will pay more than $500,000 to the government.

Health Board Hears Of Vitamin D Milk

Request That Board Endorse It Decried as Board Will Not Endorse Any Special Brand or Any Commercial Product — Births Exceed Deaths Here.

The Dairyman's League is placing on the market a milk that is known as Vitamin D milk, and last evening the Board of Health received a request that the board endorse this grade of milk. After considerable discussion it was the consensus of opinion of the members of the board that the board as a health board should not endorse any commercial product in preference to another.

It was explained that the new product would be the regular pasteurized milk handled by the League to which is added the natural Vitamin D of cod liver oil in concentrated form. This milk will sell for a cent a quart more than the regular milk.

The board held a very brief session at its regular monthly meeting and aside from deciding not to endorse any commercial product and the auditing of bills only routine matters were disposed of at the meeting.

Dr. L. E. Sanford, health officer, in reply to questions stated that there was only one case of infantile paralysis in the city, and that with the approach of colder weather there was reason to believe that no new cases would develop.

The reports of the officers which were filed with the board showed that during August there were 61 births and 50 deaths reported in Kingston.

Health Officer Sanford reported the following communicable diseases:

	1935	1934
Scarlet Fever	4	1
Measles	1	1
Typhoid Fever	2	N.R.
Chickenpox	1	0
Pneumonia	3	0
Pollomyelitis	1	0
Whooping Cough	0	1

The board then adjourned.

Melvin Eaton Delivers Threat to "Blow Up" Prominent Democrats

MELVIN C. EATON

Monticello, N. Y., Sept. 11 (AP).—A threat to "blow out of the water" a number of prominent Democratic figures in the state was recorded today by Republican State Chairman Melvin C. Eaton.

Eaton made the threat in reply to a charge by Democratic Senate Leader John J. Dunningan that Republican leaders were "indulging in mud-slinging" in the present Assembly campaign.

"If we wanted to go in for 'mud-slinging,'" Eaton said, "we have at hand so much material in the form of affidavits, and otherwise, as to blow out of the water a number of prominent Democratic figures in the state."

"I serve notice on these men here and now, and they know who they are, that any further false statements made by them about the Republican party or its campaign to recapture the Assembly, will result in some of this material being used."

The state chairman told Sullivan county Republicans gathered at Sackett Lake, near here, that President Roosevelt's announcement of a breathing spell for industry was "a frank confession" that Mr. Roosevelt "realizes his policies have failed."

He asserted that business in the United States "not only needs a breathing spell but a pulmotor to relieve it from the carbon monoxide poisoning of the New Deal's exhaust."

"There can be no doubt," Eaton added, "that the retirement of the New Deal from its present control of this country is absolutely essential if the country is to experience genuine recovery. It seems that it is a frank confession of administrative inability to declare that, after three years of experimentation, business may now look forward to what Mr. Roosevelt calls a 'breathing spell.'"

Speaking at an Erie county Republican rally Ives said "dictatorship with remote control from Washington is in the saddle at Albany."

"The Democratic members of the Legislature," he continued, "are but puppets in the hands of the Roosevelt-Farley-Lehman triumvirate which rules with a ruthlessness unmatched in the history of the state. Under Democratic control our State Legislature is as ineffective as is the present Congress at Washington."

Red Cross Sets Up War Service Unit For Hurricane Victims

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11.—Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman of the American Red Cross, has directed that a War Service unit be set up in the Miami Red Cross disaster relief organization to handle problems affecting veterans and dependents of ex-service men killed in the Florida hurricane.

DeWitt Smith, assistant director of domestic corporations of the Red Cross, has left for Miami to coordinate all Red Cross relief activities. Mr. Smith will offer Red Cross cooperation to Col. George E. Hams of the Veterans Administration who has gone to Miami.

The Red Cross asks that relatives or others making inquiry about missing veterans in the hurricane area communicate directly with the Red Cross Disaster organization, Miami, Florida, where searchers are organized to handle inquiries.

Admiral Grayson announced receipt of a contribution of $10,000 from Colonel Henry L. Doherty, Florida financier and philanthropist. Admiral Grayson telegraphed his thanks to Colonel Doherty, saying that the Red Cross was assuming relief work, furnishing doctors and nurses and would arrange emergency feeding, clothing, shelter for homeless storm victims. He said, "The most effective aid which can be rendered by those wishing to aid will be immediate cash contributions to Red Cross relief fund."

The Red Cross received reports from three of its relief workers assigned to survey damage on the west coast, up which the storm swept last Wednesday. They visited all towns from Punta Gorda to 40 miles below Cedar Key and reported no loss of life, few injuries, but considerable property damage. Many houses had been unroofed, there was considerable furniture damage due to the continuous rains and the loss to the citrus crop was reported as very heavy.

A telephoned report to National headquarters, shortly after the hurricane which swept over the keys off the southern Florida coast, from Leonard K. Thompson, disaster relief chairman of the Miami Chapter, said that reports of 100 dead had been received, with more than 150 injured, many seriously, with broken backs and limbs. The cause of death was drowning and injuries from flying debris.

Mr. Thompson estimated that one out of every three war veterans in Camp No. 1 which had been evacuated were dead. He believed that the same ratio would hold for Camps 2 and 3 which had not yet been contacted. He said there was no accurate estimate of the number of men in the camps because the preceding Saturday was pay day, and due to the intervening holiday of Labor Day, many men were on leave from the camp, visiting in nearby points. He was in contact with a Mr. Porter of the FERA camps, who felt that 500 might be a fair estimate of the number of men in the camps. Camps 2 and 3 were combined and there was no Camp 4.

Mr. Thompson said the Red Cross had 38 doctors and 30 nurses in the stricken area. About 100 injured had been taken to the village of Homestead, which is 60 miles south of Miami. They were being cared for in a hospital, school and church. He said all space was occupied, and an appeal had been sent out for additional boats to move the injured to other points. The more seriously injured had been brought to Miami by ambulance and motor, and as fast as was possible all people were being evacuated to Miami.

READY MONEY

Gold Coast Native Exchanges Get-Rich-Quick Scheme

London (A.P.)—A native of Kumasi on the Gold Coast of Africa had an idea for making money fast. The idea was good but the money probably wouldn't be. He wrote to a London shipping firm:

"I wish to find a machine which makes money, shillings and two-shillings, from some private manufacturer at America, and since every hope that I got shall be much pleased to send you order for it at once together with your discount and this will also build your discount, enable you to receive orders from me every mail and thus also build your discount."

"If you will not get some write me but I hope by all means you will get some to send me. He illustrated catalogue and price list and all necessary things such as stamps and money I may put them in to color like bronze money, the West African money that we use now."

IT'S DIFFERENT WHEN OTHERS DO IT

Reforestation Had Early Beginning At St. Lawrence

Canton, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Now that reforestation and the conservation of natural resources has engaged public attention as a national problem it is interesting to observe that what was described in 1856 as a "barren pasture" is now one of the most beautifully planted and landscaped campuses of America's older universities, and in charge of a department of forestry that has been responsible for the planting of more than ten million trees in four northern New York counties.

In 1856, when the first building at St. Lawrence University was erected, the campus was totally deforested, with the exception of a few remnants of the original forest, consisting of sugar maples, hickory, black cherry and elm. Richardson Hall, old histories of the time state, "stood bleak and bare indeed."

Tree Holiday Established
Because of this lack of trees, "Tree Holiday" was established at the university in 1869—three years before the institution of Arbor Day. On a certain day each spring, each student was required to go into the nearby woods, dig up a tree and either carry it to the campus on his back or in a wagon. Following appropriate ceremonies, the students planted their trees themselves.

Later however, trees were planted by classes. The class of '73, for example, planted native white pines—one for each member of the class. Four of these trees are still standing, as are several sugar maples planted by the class of '77. In fact, many of the trees on the campus today are a result of these Tree Holiday plantings.

Mile-Long Avenue of Elms
About 1901, a member of the class of 1902 brought back from Scotland from near the grave of Robert Burns, the poet, what has come to be known as "the Bobbie Burns Spruce." This is a Norway spruce, now about 35 feet high, and stands near the clock tower of the men's dormitory. A mile-long avenue of elms was planted in 1925 on what is known as the "Young Tract," donated to the university by Owen D. Young, an alumnus, and adjacent to the administration building was planted an open air theatre of native white cedar.

In 1929, during his visit to St. Lawrence for the purpose of receiving an honorary degree, Madame Curie planted a Douglas fir. These plantings, together with those of the student body, were responsible for the reforestation of the university campus done up until 1929, when the present department of forestry was organized, and a comprehensive program of reforestation was undertaken.

According to Floyd M. Callward, professor of forestry at the St. Lawrence and in charge of the department of forestry, this department, in May, 1929, started to accomplish on a small scale what the government has more recently undertaken on such a large scale—namely, the reforestation of idle farm land and putting to the best use possible all land in the region. For six years, the University's forestry department has preached and practiced all through northern New York the wise use and proper conservation of all natural resources including fish and game as well as forests and land.

Many thousands of trees have been planted on and adjacent to the campus and more than ten million trees have been planted in four northern New York counties.

Many Trees Not Suitable
The problems in connection with the plantings of the university campus, Mr. Callward said, are mainly those of climate. The soil itself is naturally fertile and ideal for tree growth. There has never been any erosion or other unsuitable condition with which to contend. Being north of the range of many fine trees that the campus might ordinarily have, however, the Department of Forestry is pretty much limited to the native trees of the region—elms, spruces, birches, pines, maples, firs, poplars.

The oaks, magnolias, walnuts, tulip poplars are unsuited to the high northern climate.

Business Activity :: Industry Shows Recovery From Mid-Summer Decline

(By The Associated Press)

New York, (AP)—The first half of August witnessed the recovery in industrial production that had been lost in the July decline, which, however, was less than seasonal. Production generally continued well ahead of the corresponding season of last year. Automobile production continued on a high level. With July, 1934, as 180, the figure for this July would be 127.4. Electric power output rose 1.1 per cent above that in June, instead of showing the usual seasonal decline of 1.2 per cent. The average weekly production was 5.3 per cent above July, 1934. Prices of department store items have declined slightly in the past year, increasing the physical volume of sales 9.5 per cent above July, 1934. Retail sales in general, preliminary figures show, declined more than seasonally, but remained above last year's levels. Steel production was 46.6 per cent above that of a year ago. Building and engineering contract awards increased counter-seasonally in July. Total contracts were 33.1 per cent higher than a year ago. Rail shipments of all classes of commodities declined 8.7 per cent below June, and 4.6 per cent below last July. Excluding coal shipments, however, the decline was 3.7 under June, and the level was 2.2 per cent above last year.

Wiltwyck Chapter, D. A. R., History

During the season, 1934-1935, Wiltwyck Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, was a very busy and helpfully active organization, under the regency of Miss Louise Van Hoesen. The story of these activities has been well told by Mrs. McCommons, the historian of the chapter. Now as the chapter comes to its forward look for the year, 1935-1936, the regent has appointed several new committees to carry on with utmost efficiency.

Both the history of the past year and the outlook of the new are to be found in the following account and grouping:

Review of the Past Year
Again Wiltwyck Chapter, D. A. R., closes a year of work and pleasure. Activities, constructive, social, outstanding and delightful, have passed before us. It is, indeed, needless for me to numerate them all as they have been portrayed before us in the excellent minutes of our officers and chairmen. Cooperation in the chapter has been all that it should be—efficient and dutiful. We, as a chapter, can well be proud of our place in the community, the state and at Washington.

The attendance at the meetings has been good. We have been glad to welcome our out of town members, our guests and visitors at any and all times.

Our membership at present is 179. This number, of necessity, varies because of death, residence elsewhere, and for reasons beyond desire. Throughout these trying times the chapter has striven to keep healthy, and true to its aims and traditions.

We record with very deep regret the losses sustained, and we look with pleasure on the new faces we see among us, especially the younger group. To them we are looking to an ever increasing part in our organization.

Our quotas to state and nation we have met. Some money donations have gone to worthy causes. Our chapter house has been well cared for.

Our 42nd year began on Thursday, October 4, 1934, when at 1:30 o'clock a luncheon was served and a social hour was enjoyed before the regular meeting. The Americanism committee gave reports on the September court for new citizens, and the reports on the Herald Tribune Conference in New York city were heard. The afternoon closed with a musical program.

On Tuesday, October 16, Chapter Day was celebrated by a musical and tea at the chapter's home.

At the November meeting reports were heard on the State Conference held at Albany on October 4, 5, and 6—also the trip and experiences to Ellis Island were described.

Photographs of stones over graves in the First Dutch Reformed Church yard were on exhibition. The work was accomplished by Mrs. Virgil Van Wageningen and Miss Pettigill. The hostesses were Mrs. C. G. Hillis and Mrs. Cornelia Stafford.

December 6, members of Wiltwyck Chapter motored to Saugerties to be the guests of Mrs. John T. Washburn, Congressman Philip Goodwin, spoke on "National Defense". Tea and a social hour were enjoyed.

December 6 was the last meeting of the calendar year. This was the occasion of an "Ellis Island Shower". A very valuable volume, "Inscriptions on Old Grave Stones in Ulster County," by Dr. Poucher, was presented to the chapter by Theodore Brink of Lake Katrine. A play and music was given by children of the chapter members. Mrs. William Anderson and Mrs. Prescott J. Clapp were hostesses.

Wiltwyck Chapter had the honor of entertaining Miss Page Schwartz, welder, state treasurer, at a luncheon held at the Governor Clinton Hotel on Thursday, January 3, 1935, and at the regular monthly meeting at the chapter house following the luncheon. Two copies of "Old Gravestones of Ulster County" were presented by Mrs. A. T. Clearwater. (One copy went to the National Society D. A. R. at Washington for the library in Continental Hall, as requested, and the second copy was placed in our own library). A New Testament containing the Psalms, was given by Mrs. Cranston and Mrs. Gertrude Van Kuren gave two Indian Heads as museum pieces. The election of delegates and alternates to Washington for the Continental Congress in April took place. Solos sung by Miss Evelyn Saxe were rendered. Mrs. E. O. Allen and Mrs. Maurice Safford were hostesses.

On February 5 the annual meeting of the Incorporated Society of the D. A. R. was held and the election of officers took place.

On February 5, owing to illness of the regent, vice-regent and secretary, and because of death and illness in the Saugerties Chapter the program was somewhat changed. Several announcements were made and the meeting was turned over to Miss Helen Turner, who had arranged a musical program. Mrs. James W. Scott and Mrs. William Niles were hostesses.

Lincoln's birthday was celebrated by a card party at the chapter house. A goodly sum was netted for the annual benefit of the approved schools and a patron ticket in New York city.

There was open house on Washington's birthday and the program committee gave a "naturalization court in action", which was both amusing and instructive. After this, refreshments were served and Mrs. Lawrence, our venerable and dearly loved chaplain, whose birthday it was, was presented with a birthday cake.

At the March meeting reports were given on the approved schools, finances of Constitution Hall at Washington, penny-day fund, old gold collection for memory book; also reports were given concerning the sisterhood mix packages, the sale proceeds of which go to the D. A. R. funds. (The packages are put up by Drummedary Co., after an original recipe of Mary Ball Washington). Mrs. Bogart read a paper on "National Defense". Mrs. Van Wageningen reported on the Dora Broadhead Conway legacy to Wiltwyck Chapter. The program was in charge of the New Palts members. The hostesses were Mrs. Charles Terwilliger and Mrs. R. H. D. Boerker.

On April 4 there was a large attendance. A nominating committee was appointed and a report was given on funds for Constitution Hall. An article in the National D. A. R. magazine about our Wiltwyck Chapter House by our regent was read, as was also "Our Chapter House and Its History", prepared by Mrs. W. Dean Hays. Mrs. Hiram Whitney and Mrs. Howard St. John were hostesses.

Wiltwyck Chapter had as its guests of honor a recently elected national officer, Mrs. E. Thomas Boyd, chaplain general, and a former state chairman of "approved schools", Mrs. Bertus Clark Lauren, on Thursday, May 2. A luncheon was enjoyed by a large number of members and out of town guests at the chapter house.

Reports on Americanism committee at the May 1 naturalization court were heard and also an account was given of the benefit performance held in New York city in April by the "Approved Schools".

The election of officers took place at May 15 meeting, and the reports of the 44th Continental Congress at Washington by the members who attended were given. Mention was made of a sesquicentennial celebration to be held at West Point on June 14, 15, 16, to honor the "Father of the Military Academy". An invitation is extended to us for this event. Notice was given that the Hudson Valley Conference will meet at Newburgh, June 11. Quosassa Chapter acting as hostesses. Also Wiltwyck Chapter will act as hostess on October 19, when the district meeting will be held in Kingston.

Plans are under way for a garden party to be held on Flag Day, June 14, at the chapter house. It is hoped it will be a success both socially and financially. Mrs. Dean Hays and Mrs. Clarence Fromm are hostesses.

Wiltwyck Chapter held its annual Memorial Day Service Sunday, May 26, following the church service. The homage paid the Revolutionary soldiers and all they stand for afforded an inspiring occasion, and as taps were sounded across the church yard over the flag and flower decked graves it was a fitting close to an impressive ceremony.

June 5 there was an exchange program with Saugerties Chapter. The part of Wiltwyck Chapter being taken by Mrs. Adin C. Gates, who read her fine paper, "Women of the Revolution". And now as one year ago today we heard the annual reports of this year's officers, so today we again see a similar proceeding. It has been my privilege and pleasure to render to you an accounting of the history of Wiltwyck Chapter—the story of the past year.

In closing permit me to read a prayer by William DeWitt Hyde, that I observed in a glass case in Smithsonian Institute in Washington: "Give me clean hands, clean words and clean thoughts, help me to stand for the hard right against the easy wrong, save me from habits that harm, teach me to work as hard and play as fair in thy sight alone, as if the whole world saw, forgive me if I am unkind, and help me to forgive those who are unkind to me; keep me ready to help others at some cost to myself, send me chances to do a little good every day and so grow more like Christ."

Tomato's Popularity Not So Long Standing

With field-ripened tomatoes now on our markets — tomatoes grown here in New York state and offered for sale only a few hours after picking—the strange story of this rich, red fruit comes to the front with striking interest.

The odd part of tomato history lies in the fact that its present popularity dates back less than 100 years, points out Peter G. Ten Eyck, Commissioner of Agriculture and Markets, in a statement issued today through the Consumers' Information Service. This native of western South America was introduced into cultivation in Europe as early as the 16th century but Europeans viewed the wrinkled fruits with suspicion and disfavor. In its new growing area the tomato was looked upon merely as a garden ornament.

Both yellow and red-fruited sorts were known in the 18th century, but it was not until the middle of the 19th century that decided improvement was made in the form of the fruit. At the dawn of the 19th century, the fruits were used to a negligible extent for pickles and preserves but less for other purposes. Credit for the development to today's form and popularity must go to the plant-breeders. Under their care, wrinkles have been eliminated. Perfect methods of canning have come into existence.

Vine Ripened The Best
The new crop now on the markets has the full flavor not developed by the greenhouse type. More than that, tomatoes that have been picked green and ripened in the markets are less juicy than those ripened on the vine. Therefore the very best for fresh table use are to be had from the home-grown crop.

Consumers will do well to bear in mind that tomatoes of good quality are mature, firm but not over-ripe, fairly well formed, plump, smooth, of good color and free from blemish. There are many defects in tomatoes which are serious only from the standpoint of waste in preparing for table. Catfaces or scars around the blossom end are typical of the defects within this class.

Some tomatoes are rough or irregular in shape. They may not be attractive in appearance but for certain purposes they can be used with little waste. Those tomatoes having growth cracks are all right for immediate consumption but seldom will keep long. Puffy or watery fruit usually is of poor flavor and is wasteful. Puffy tomatoes generally are angular in shape. Another point worth noting before shopping for tomatoes is that immature fruit usually appears shriveled or is angular in form and has a whitish-green color.

A booklet of tomato recipes will be given free by sending a post card to the Consumers' Information Service, Department of Agriculture and Markets, Albany, N. Y.

duently controlled for her to continue acting. The tarantula was killed.

A number of growers and handlers of apples are saying that the McIntosh is just about the biggest they have seen in several years. The McIntoshes are just coming into the market. The first picking of any quantity of the fruit began five or six days ago but the fruit so far is not of good color. In another week the color will be better and picking will be on in earnest. Prices are nothing to brag about, not so good as last year. Many seasons, however, have seen them lower. Indications are that they will be about the same as two years ago. Prices vary with the size and color of the apples. They range from 60 cents for the small ones to $1.00 for the larger ones. Improvement is expected within a short time.

Outside Outlets

For a slightly additional amount an outside convenience outlet can be included in wiring plans.

Garden lighting, electrical hedge clippers, and car washers are a few of the many items which should have convenient outlets.

If outlets are designed to meet future needs and installed when the house is built, they will cost less and be less trouble.

IMPROVEMENT HINTS ON HOME

Square Plan Advantageous

"Monotonous" Outside Lines Hide Comforts Within

In this "square plan" house the numerous advantages the type offers are paid for by a certain monotony of exterior appearance.

Addition of an "all" porch, of great advantage in the summer, serves to offset the "squareness" somewhat. The porch is not shown on the plan, as it may be added whenever and wherever the owner wishes.

One entrance serves for all purposes. The kitchen is well ventilated and of ample size. Dining and living rooms are ideally related both for comfort and for the convenience of the housewife.

The second floor has three bedrooms, a useful sewing room and plenty of good sized closets. The sewing room, like the bedrooms, has cross-ventilation.

With the house measuring only 25 by 27 feet, almost any lot will do, but if the porch is to be added, a fairly large plot of ground would be better.

Facing north, the kitchen and dining room would get the morning sun.

Cost is estimated between $3,500 and $5,000, depending on local factors.

Housing Question Box

Q.—I am designing a drainage system for my new house. How should I figure the capacity of the house drain?

A.—In designing a drainage system, the capacity of the house drain is determined on the basis of the greatest number of fixture units likely to be frequently discharged together or so as to overlap, including rain water if discharged into it.

The house drain should be able to take away the water as fast as received without backing up into the soil or waste stacks, and at a velocity sufficient to prevent the deposit of solids; that is, a velocity of about two feet or more per second.

One authority states that a 4-inch pipe with a grade of one-fourth inch per foot will accommodate 14 fixture units, or practically one water closet (6), one wash-basin (1), one bath tub (2), one kitchen sink (1 1/2), and two combined laundry trays (3), all discharged at once, which would seldom be the case.

A reliable plumbing contractor can advise you on your particular case.

Q.—What is the best method for removing tree stumps?

A.—For tree stumps located on a small piece of property, it is usually inadvisable to use dynamite, particularly if the owner wishes to do the work himself.

Tree stumps can be destroyed by burning, following a treatment to make them and their roots inflammable.

Bore several holes vertically into the stumps. Use salt-peter (nitrate of potash) and hot water. Pour this into the holes and the salt-peter will be carried downward through the veins and fibers. Refill the holes several times. When the wood is impregnated, which may take several weeks, build a fire about the stump. The roots and stump will be completely consumed.

During hot weather, paraffin may be used. Destruction of the underground roots will not be as complete as with salt-peter, but can be performed in a few days. The soil should be carefully examined to make sure that it will not burn, too, in which case an underground fire may be started which might smolder for days.

Paint Sales Continue To Show Big Gains

Washington, D. C.—Paint, varnish, and lacquer sales in the United States for the first six months of 1935 showed a 15.2 per cent gain of the corresponding period in 1934, according to data reported to the Bureau of the Census by 536 identical establishments.

In the month of June 1935 paint, varnish and lacquer sales were 16.5 per cent ahead of the same month last year.

Employment, total man-hours, and pay rolls in the paint and varnish industry during June 1935 also showed a definite upturn when compared with the same factors in all industry. Taking the year 1923 as an index (100), employment in the paint and varnish industry in June 1935 was 110.2 per cent of normal; all industry, 82.9 per cent. By similar comparison, total man-hours in the paint and varnish industry, 90.7 per cent; all industry, 60.5 per cent. Pay rolls for the paint and varnish industry, 96.3 per cent; all industry, 66.8 per cent.

An insight into activity in the paint, varnish and lacquer industry of recent months is shown in figures for June compiled by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. By their compilation, 26,888 wage earners were employed in the industry in June 1935. The pay roll for the industry for one week in June was estimated at $589,380.

While the paint industry was showing marked gains during the first half year of 1935, modernization credit extended by financial institutions holding Federal Housing Administration insurance contracts totaled 224,731 separate loans of a total value of $91,987,077 as of June 30, 1935. Significantly, it is estimated by the Housing Administration that 16.5 per cent of the total of modernization jobs pledged was for exterior paint projects and 5 per cent for interior painting and decorating.

Commenting recently upon the general aspect of the paint industry at the present time, George H. Priest, editor of the American Paint Journal, said:

"It is interesting to note that in spite of generally unfavorable weather during the Spring, when painting activity is usually at its peak, stocks continued to move from dealers' shelves and did not stand in the way of orders for replacement and new business during June. Incidentally the impression is current that a much greater amount of deferred work than had been expected has developed into actual painting jobs since the first of July.

The comparative freedom from intense heat and the ready availability of money for loans on building and modernization projects have doubtless been contributing factors."

Housing Hints

Tips on How and What to Improve

Breakfast Nook.

If the breakfast nook in a kitchen is crowded install a shelf on the wall above the electric outlet and paint or enamel it to harmonize or contrast with your breakfast-room furniture. Such a shelf will give you a place to set the toaster during breakfast and will hold accessories between meals.

Pool Curb.

A concrete curb may be placed around a lily pool if desired. In places where a pool is shaded, many builders place boulders and rocks around the sides. Whatever type of pool is selected, the owner will find it helps to improve the appearance of the home garden.

Estimates.

When your painter is giving you an estimate on the cost of painting the exterior of your home, be sure that the written statement covers everything you want painted. This is the best way to avoid the possibility of a future misunderstanding.

There is, of course, first of all, the house itself (including sash and trim). Also listed should be the roof, the blinds, the screens, the leaders and gutters, the garage, fences, trellises and pergolas. It is important to see that the number of coats for each is specified and that all cracks are filled at the time the exterior surface is prepared for painting.

Good Lighting.

Don't run the risk of the results of poor lighting. If the light is not properly located and adequately intense, a person reading will find his eyes tire easily and then serious eye strain results.

Your local electrical contractor will measure the intensity of your present light and remedy it. He will advise you also on the location of lights to be used for different purposes.

Red Accent.

Red's primary use is as an accent color, particularly in rooms that receive little sunlight. As such, it should be used sparingly and with neutral backgrounds.

REMODELING AND NEW CONSTRUCTION

MORE LUMBER WILL BE USED IS PREDICTION

Washington, D. C.—Lumber consumption this year will be greater than it has been in any 12-month period since 1931, it is predicted by the special lumber survey committee of the Department of Commerce.

The committee estimates a total consumption of between 16,000,000,000 and 17,000,000,000 board feet during 1935, which contrasts favorably with the total of 13,105,000,000 feet in 1932 and 15,467,000,000 last year. The stimulus given residential construction by the Federal Housing Administration on a nationwide scale is said by the committee to have been partly responsible for the gains in the lumber industry.

Landscaping Treatment Deserves Careful Study

The prospective home builder frequently neglects to investigate the suitability of his building site from the standpoint of landscape treatment. Often he enjoys gardening and is greatly disappointed to find his soil too poor to raise flowers.

Sometimes he does not request that the trees and shrubs already on the site be preserved. He may have a site preconceived picture of the way he wishes his house to be landscaped and be sure that the property he has chosen is not fitted for this.

Before he purchases his property it is to his advantage to retain both his architect and a landscape architect. The latter can give him expert advice on such matters as the soil, tree growth, drainage, and cost of grading and will work in close cooperation with the architect in locating the house on the property in order to develop the landscape plan.

After it has been decided that the site is in a proper neighborhood and is suited to the requirements of the home itself and all preliminary inspection and final selection of the property is made, a survey is made. Pertinent data relative to the property's fitness to proper landscape treatment may be attached.

Is the grade very steep, and will expensive grading be out of proportion with the cost of the house? Is there space provided for a drying yard, flower or vegetable garden, and other features the prospective owner desires? Is there a rich top soil or will all planting require extensive fertilization? Does the water drain properly or is the property swampy? Is the soil rocky?

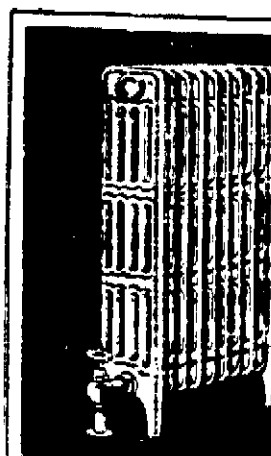

These and many other questions should be raised before the property has been purchased. The difficulties and disappointments which beset the home owner who has not chosen his site with care can be averted. Proper landscaping adds greatly to the interest of the structure itself and should receive full consideration in planning a home.

Hitler In Proclamation Raps Wilson's 14 Points, Says Nazis Want Peace

Nazi Party Convention Bursts Into Bedlam of Applause as Der Fuehrer Proclaims Will of Nation's Leaders.

"REICH NO FOOTBALL"

Sees in Army Protection for Peaceful Labor and Full Sacrifices for Liberty.

Nurnberg, Germany, Sept. 11 (AP)—Reichsfuehrer Hitler, in a proclamation read to the Nazi party convention, rapped President Wilson's famous 14 points today, and the delegates assembled from all Germany burst into a bedlam of applause.

"Where are the 14 points of Wilson and where is the world today?" asked Hitler. "The Reich (Germany) is no longer a football and no longer an object of foreign maneuvering, but now is in security—in security not by pacts but by the real power of the nation and by the firm will of its leadership."

(President Wilson, early in 1918, offered to the world in general and to Germany in particular a program of 14 points which served as the basis for the final conclusion of peace ending the World War and for the eventual establishment of the League of Nations.)

Proclamation's Points

The proclamation continued: "We Nazis intend to live in peace and quiet with our neighbors. It is not necessary for us to prove our security by any demonstrations. It is sufficient that we ourselves know it."

"We see in our army the protection for peaceful labor. And when we are forced to make sacrifices, then we will make them for our liberty and will."

"This army is our most valued and proudest possession."

The Hitler proclamation stated that the Nazis had no desire to fight Christianity, adding, "But the National Socialist state will under no circumstances tolerate in any way 'round-about' confessional politics' and on this let no one be deceived concerning the determination of the (Nazi) movement and the state. . . ."

"But we will keep our policy clean of priests who missed their profession and who should have been politicians instead of clergymen."

Hinting that Communists would eventually wipe out the church, Der Fuehrer continued:

"The Communist victory would find the solution of the problem of 26 antiquated Protestant churches as well as the Catholic center of politics."

Speaks Warning

He spoke the following warning to price hoisters:

"Beginning now with a brutal disregard for them and without shrinking we will fight such elements and through concentration camps teach them what collective interest and coordination mean."

"History will confirm that what the National Socialist party did in three short years was an enormous change which no one thought possible and which even today is not believed by various elements," his proclamation said.

"We have a financial belief in the future."

The proclamation was read to the convention by Adolf Wager, Bavarian Nazi district leader.

5 Million Laborers

Hitler's proclamation asserted, "We have given work to 5,000,000 laborers. That means 20 to 40 million working hours daily, regardless of what they do."

"This gigantic achievement of National Socialism is for the betterment not only of millions but for the whole nation."

Rudolf Hess, Der Fuehrer's deputy on party matters, lauded Hitler "for reconquering Germany's honor," and condemned Jews and Communists in a loudly-applauded speech preceding the reading of the proclamation.

Turning to Hitler, he said, "Through the destruction of Communism you have assured domestic freedom and through your order of March 16 (smashing the military clauses of the Versailles treaty) you have won Germany's foreign freedom."

Through the smashing of Jewish influences, Hess said, Nazis simultaneously broke Communism, and "world revolution can never come to Germany."

Communism, he said, "means destruction while National Socialism means construction."

Secretary Ickes Goes To Hyde Park Today

Washington, Sept. 11 (AP)—Secretary Ickes headed for Hyde Park today to present to President Roosevelt his demand for a last minute overhaul of the works relief machinery.

Some high officials predicted that the best he could hope for would be a compromise restoring some of the 2,000 PWA projects already rejected by Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator.

In making public his long standing differences with Hopkins, Ickes said yesterday the president telephoned him on Monday night and asked him to come to Hyde Park.

Charles West, under-secretary of interior and a trusted advisor of the president, had visited the president on Monday, following a week-end visit by Hopkins.

Ickes has succeeded in salvaging the $250,000,000 low cost housing program and $10,000,000 for reclamation projects from Hopkins' insistence on small, flexible and inexpensive projects.

In addition he appealed to the president to oppose and finally force an acceptable compromise on an amendment to the work relief program which he contended would have ruled out many PWA projects.

No sign of yielding, in the present controversy, however, came from Hopkins yesterday. He did say he had "too much work to do" to quarrel with Ickes—adding that he planned to go to Hyde Park after the interior secretary's visit.

Ickes is concerned with removing two related dangers to his projects: One, the series of deadlines fixed for the immediate start of the $4,000,000,000 program; two, Hopkins' insistence that the cost of materials be held down, and that projects be such as to provide for the people on relief, and no others, in a particular locality.

The breach between Ickes and Hopkins has widened recently as the president relied more and more on the latter to put speed into the lagging program.

Federal expenditures during the past four fiscal years have totaled $25,000,000,000—more than 80 percent of the war-time expenditures of 1914 and 1918, which is about equal to the total of all federal expenditures from 1789 to 1914.

Avenues of Fashion with Esquire

What with the approach of the time when one must discard the old Chapeau de Paille, as the French so deftly term hats of straw, the attendant activity of selecting a hat of felt is upon us. The problem that is present for those of unusual height or girth is one that would well take several volumes to propound. However, here we will concern ourselves only with the current fashion in top pieces and discuss a complete wardrobe of hats for day wear. One need not own all these hats, but the advantages of having several to be used with appropriate types of clothes is apparent.

HARD HAT

The derby, or as it is called in England in honor of its originator, the Bowler, is ever useful for wear in town, although originally made to serve as a headguard for huntmen. Fashion favors this hat with a full slightly belled crown and fairly flat brim.

SMART HAT

Growing in popularity is the Homburg of black or midnight blue, an alternate for the derby and correct for wear with tuxedo or dinner clothes.

SOFT HAT

The dark brown snap brim, with its black band, may have either bound or raw edge and is a favorite with University men for on and off campus wear.

ROUGH HAT

The Homburg in scratch finish is particularly appropriate for early autumn wear, favored in brown, green and medium grey.

COUNTRY HAT

For the typical country outfit, the Pork Pie, named for its resemblance to that British culinary favorite, carries out the feeling of tweeds, in rough finish brown or green.

SPORT HAT

Many men have found to their liking, the smart conical-crowned

Tyroleean hat in rough finish felt. It is competing for current favor with the all-purpose brown snap brim.

CLOTH HAT

Hats of stitched tweed have a constant place in the fashion picture.

Impervious to weather, they have a nonchalance that is decidedly smart.

CAP

The smart cap, made in one piece in a distinct plaid such as the Prince of Wales sports, is a far cry from the sort of thing that is part of the props of a movie gunman.

The sleeves have tucks in front, which carries the yoke line further, and they are short, and full. The skirt has inserts at either side, fits smoothly over the hips, and has the wide-at-the-hem feeling that most skirts have this season.

MODES OF THE MOMENT

lower print satin--a smart fabric for intimate apparel. Diana Merwin

Sleek satin in soft pastels has always been a favorite fabric for intimate apparel but the new flower-printed satins, we think, are even more dainty and feminine.

While lace trims many of the new low-front models, it also has a vaster models--there is a great profusion of lace with soft, slender bows trimming the more tailored, sporty and well-trimmed facings and a stressing durability as well as a touch of self-covered buttons at front, fascinating, pleasing and bottom for.

The pattern at left uses a white low-front neckline. The moulded bust effect is produced by sunburst pattern and a narrow sash ties at the waist.

White daisies are applied at the usual in color theme.

Variable, Magnetic, Unpredictable Was The Many-Sided Long

Washington, Sept. 11 (AP).—From start to finish, Senator Long's private life in the capital was a never-ending extravaganza of contradictions. His ways here were as unpredictable as they were novel.

Senators, who were astonished to hear the senior member from Louisiana mispronounce the simplest words, were even more amazed when Long used in the next breath correctly such a word as "petroglyphic." He said "ain't" and "herod-o-tus" and then would quote verbatim without a falter.

Sometimes at night, after lying for hours in bed copying passages from the Bible, friends said today, they had seen him suddenly, in a burst of profanity, decide to tour Washington's fashionable night clubs. He would ignore messages from leading citizens on occasion, yet his secretaries said he never refused a request for an autograph.

He spent large sums on expensive, exquisitely tailored clothes. He would turn down thousands of social invitations, stating he did not care for a gay life, and then out of a clear sky would show up at some highly formal function, startling the hostess with the presence of his bodyguard.

Long refused every formal invitation which he received as a senator from Louisiana to attend affairs at the White House. A secretary said he had not worn a full dress suit since he was governor of Louisiana.

Frequenters of the Shoreham Terrace regarded Long as one of Washington's latest night hawks but at the Congressional Country Club he was regarded as one of the city's earliest risers. He often arrived at the club shortly after daybreak for an 18-hole golf game.

His score seldom was under 100. Invariably his foursome consisted of himself, his secretary, and two of his guards. He had only a few intimate friends, his secretaries said, listing as one of his closest acquaintances, Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana.

He was said to sleep about three hours a night although about once a week he would retire early and sleep late.

Many nights he would stay at his hotel and read until 3 o'clock in the morning. The Bible, The Works of Josephus, Victor Hugo's Les Miserables, Boswell's Life of Johnson, Plutarch, The Letters of Junius, and Plato were his favorites. He read these books again and again, turning now and then to Shakespeare and to "odds and ends."

HUEY LONG: Success Story Of A Louisiana Plowboy

No. 1

At the tag-end of a sweltering Louisiana summer, on August 30, 1893, Huey Pierce Long was born on a 320-acre cotton farm in Winn parish. Most of his first 13 years were spent "behind the plow" or hoeing cotton. "Tisling before the sun, we toiled until after dark, after which we did nothing except eat supper, listen to the whippoorwills, and go to bed," was the way Long, in his autobiography, described the routine of his childhood.

Young Huey's schooling was slight. He attended high school in Shreveport for a while but did not finish. He was, however, a persistent reader and apparently a great talker. His interest in debate was keen and later, in a forensic contest, he won a scholarship to Louisiana State University. Lacking funds for daily living, he had to pass it up. At 16, the red-haired, tobacco-chewing youth shook the dust of the farm from his feet to enter the world.

In the next few years, the young Huey wandered from job to job, apparently unable to become enthralled with any he held. He was typesetter for a while on the Winnfield (La.) Sentinel and on the Dodson (La.) Times. He was a book salesman and then spent months selling a substitute for lard. While in the last position, he conducted a baking contest in Shreveport. The prize went to Rose McConnell, who later was to become Mrs. Long.

The baking contest romance was given further impetus two years later, when Rose McConnell came to the rescue of her young friend. In 1912, Huey was arrested in connection with a shooting in Shreveport. Rose took the stand and established his alibi, testifying that he had taken her to the theatre on the night in question. She produced theatre stubs to prove it. The next year they were married. To the union were born a daughter and two sons.

Huey set out immediately to complete his education. He attended the University of Oklahoma for three months and then spent seven months at Tulane University, cramming for the state bar examinations. This he passed in 1915 and returned to the little town of Winnfield, on the site of his birthplace, to hang out his shingle. His reputation as a lawyer started sprouting almost immediately and in a few years it had jumped the bounds of his parish.

This was the last picture made of Senator Long before he was seriously wounded by a young Louisiana doctor as he left a session of the state legislature at Baton Rouge. It was made 15 minutes before the shooting. Long is shown sitting on the speaker's rostrum facing the camera. Speaker Allen Ellender (in white suit) is in the foreground. (Associated Press Photo)

LONG'S FACIAL CHARACTER

Although his life was brought to an untimely end by an assassin's bullet, Senator Huey P. Long's unusual facial characteristics were implanted deeply on millions of minds. This drawing by an Associated Press artist furnishes a good study of the senator.

TO CONTINUE HUEY LONG FEUD?

With the death of Senator Long, the political destiny of Louisiana became a mooted question. Heated speculation was immediately centered on Governor O. K. Allen (left), one of Long's closest henchmen, and Mayor, T. Semmes Walmesley of New Orleans, one of Long's strongest foes. The political world wondered if the Long machine could retain its dictatorial power. (Associated Press Photos)

Associated Press Sports Writer.

Now that Mel Ott has broken his hitting streak, perhaps the Giants will regain their old pace.

Ott came out of his slump in the second game of the doubleheader with the Pittsburgh Pirates yesterday, driving out two hits that contributed mightily to the second victory.

Ott contributed to the Giants' collapse last September by his record of coming to the plate 25 consecutive times without getting a hit. He failed to connect in the first game yesterday, which the Giants won 4-3, and thereby hung up a new record of 28 times at bat without a hit.

In the second game, however, the rightfielder drove in the Giants' first run in the fourth with a double and sent the tying tally across in the ninth with a single. The Giants won 4-2.

The double win brought the New Yorkers within a game and a half of the Cubs and two games and a half of the Cardinals, National League leaders.

The Cards took Philadelphia into camp, 4-2, but they had some anxious innings. Joe Bowman held the Birds to one hit and one run until the eighth inning, when they went on a three-run epurage and then sent Dazy Dean into the breach to retain their advantage.

Cubs Win Seventh Straight.
The Cubs recorded their seventh straight win with Charley Root pitching a 4-0 shutout over the Braves. Root allowed but six hits. Only one runner got to second.

The New York Yankees defeated the Indians 4-1 to make their victory string five straight. Tito Tamulis, an early season sensation, allowed but six hits.

The Yankee victory, coupled with the 6-0 defeat of Detroit by Washington, shaved the Tigers' lead to seven and a half games. Buck Newsum held the Tigers to six hits while Schoolboy Rowe gave way to a pinch hitter in the sixth after allowing 11 hits and four runs.

Lefty Grove won his 17th game of the season for the Boston Red Sox, shading the White Sox 4-3. The victory moved the Boston team to within a half game of the third-place Indians.

The St. Louis Browns beat the Athletics 8-6. It was the 13th straight loss for the Mackmen, who have sputtered the American League cellar position from the Browns.

The Brooklyn Dodgers defeated the Cincinnati Reds 4-1, as Cincinnati made four costly errors. Lefty Clark held the Reds scoreless until the ninth, when they bunched three of their seven hits to score their only run.

Yankees—Checked Indians with six hits.
Al Lopez, Dodgers—Found Cincinnati pitchers for three hits.
Joe Medwick, Cardinals—His double in eighth scored two runs in games with Phillips and ran hitting streak to 27 straight games.

Dib Williams, Red Sox—Came through with double with bases loaded, scoring two runs to beat White Sox.
Buck Newsum, Senators—Shut out Tigers with six hits.
Charley Root, Cubs—Allowed Braves six hits and only one runner to get past first base.

Harland Clift, Browns—Drove in three runs with a homer as Browns swept four-game series with Athletics.

Apple Knockers Blank A. D. Rose Team

With Ben Fein doing the pitching the Apple Knockers took over the A. D. Rose team at the Fair Grounds Tuesday evening by the decidedly convincing score of 12 to 0.

This victory gives the Apple Knockers a tie with the Chevrolet for first place in the City League. It is planned to play a series of three games to decide the championship, starting probably on Friday. The Chevrolet have had two wins against the Apple Knockers this season.

COLONIALS TROUCE FRENCH DYE WORKS 17-5

The Colonials went into a tie with the Moose for the lead in the Club Softball League Tuesday night, when they defeated the French Dye Works by the one-sided score of 17 to 5.

The winners pounded out 20 hits, scoring at will throughout the contest. A seven run rally as early as the second inning put the game on ice. Don Swaney led the Colonials with four hits, while Harry Wheeler and Williams had three each.

Williams and Harry were the battery for the Colonials while Medvott and Gallagher worked for the losers. The play for the Club League championship will take place Friday night.

The score by innings:
R. H. E.
Dye Works .. 020 410 2- .. 2 7 2
Colonials .. 270 221 3- .. 17 20 2

Huron Indians and The Superchargers In Three Game Series

The Graham Superchargers of Napanoch have accepted the challenge of the Huron Indians for a three-game series to be played on the Nordland diamond, near Napanoch, September 15, 22 and 29. The games will start at 2:30 p. m. The Nordland diamond is located on Route 229, the Kingston-Elleville road.

Manager Gray of the Superchargers feels that only two games will be necessary to settle the question of inter-town championship. Manager Baumgarten of the Indians feels the same.

The starting batteries will be Ben Quick and Charles Wyncoop for the Superchargers, while Horaback and Yonnetti will take over the assignment for the Indians. Quick has lost two games this season. Horaback has but one loss scored against him, that of last Sunday.

Large crowds are expected to attend the games as both clubs have a big following. In addition there has been intense rivalry between the clubs the past few seasons, amounting almost to ill feeling. The fans are looking forward with expectation of seeing some red hot baseball.

Those attending the games will find an enclosed grandstand and plenty of parking space.

Joe Louis Worries Over Marriage; Baer Fight Incidental

Pompton Lakes, N. J., Sept. 11 (AP).—The social and sartorial etiquette of a young man attending his first wedding as a principal in the cast drew considerable of Joe Louis' attention today.

Between that interesting situation involving himself and 19-year-old Marva Trotter, Chicago stenographer, and his deep concern for Mickey Cochrane and the Detroit Tigers in their American League pennant hunt, this heavyweight battle with Max Baer in the Yankee Stadium September 24, isn't getting much of the scribe's attention at the moment.

Louis is going to marry his fiancée in New York the day after his struggle with Baer, which gives you some sort of an idea of the nonchalance with which he regards the great lover's right-hand punching powers.

A man usually likes to look his best at his own wedding, and even Jimmy Braddock, though he won Max's heavyweight title in June, wasn't very pretty for a week on account of a black eye and battered nose. Both Louis and Baer left Primo Carnera looking like he'd run a tie with a locomotive to a grade crossing.

But Louis is buying his wedding wardrobe and, despite urging of his entire camp, he's discarded the idea of grey-striped trousers and a frock coat in favor of double-breasted blue.

"What's more," he announced to all his associates, "you ain't going to see me anyway, so what do you care what I wear? We're going to find us a preacher, lock the door, and come out smiling, all married."

Practices Sharpshooting.

Speculator, N. Y., Sept. 11 (AP).—Max Baer, realizing he will be blazing at a weeping target when he meets Joe Louis on the 24th of September, is practicing to be a sharpshooter and apparently doing pretty well at it.

Critics watching him in his boxing routine have repeatedly remarked that his punching accuracy has improved greatly. He hasn't been swinging at the breeze as he did the night Jim Braddock stripped him of his crown.

Tony Canale, Willie McGee and Lou Scroza, his sparring partners, will agree. They have been on the catching end of some unerring punching.

Bettina Boxes Draw With Hough in Star Bout at Poughkeepsie

The eight round bout between Melio Bettina, 167, of Beacon, and Mark Hough, 164, of New York, featuring the Jewish benefit card at Woodcliff Park, Poughkeepsie, Tuesday night, ended in a draw. Approximately 1,500 fans witnessed the duel, which was packed with action from the first to the final gong.

In the seventh round Hough had Bettina on the floor six times while Referee Billy Cavanaugh of West Point tolled off the count of nine.

He weathered the stormy session, however, and made a strong comeback in the eighth and final stanza to help him split even with the ex-Golden Glover.

Bettina was the favorite, many of his friends from cities along the Hudson being at the ringside to cheer him on. He fought all along the river several years ago as an amateur. Under the name of Young Melio he boxed at the old Servicer arena for Carl J. "Doc" Stander when he ran shows under the Amateur Federation of Sports Clubs. He also fought in the Golden Glove contests prior to turning professional about a year ago.

In the semi-final of eight rounds, Joe Archibald, 122, Providence, R. I., got the decision over Jose Santos, 126, of Brooklyn.

Larry Arecca, who fought in Kingston under the name of Benny Shields, and later at Walkkill prison, lost a six round bout to Howard Clark, ex-Golden Glover from New York. The weights were Arecca 148, Clark 144.

George Gressowich, 184, of Walkkill, boxing his first time as a professional, outpointed Charlie Zozler, 182, of New York, in four rounds.

Red Finnegan, 164, Utica, outpointed Al Lerinsky, Poughkeepsie, four rounds.

Romero DuCherm, 154, Montreal, outpointed Jose Rodriguez, 157, Port Rico.

Sherman Rosen, 140, New York, outpointed Carl Arnold, 140, New York, four rounds.

Sam Riber of Kingston was the announcer.

'Bama's Crimson Tide, Bowl Winner, Favored To Repeat As Best In Dixie

Riley Smith (center), the south's greatest quarterback of 1934, is back at Alabama, ready to throw his 190 pounds against the opposition in the Crimson Tide's bid for another invitation to the Rose Bowl (shown in picture below), where Alabama triumphed over Stanford last New Year's Day. At the left is "Kay" Francis, veteran center who will again put the ball in play for the team rated as the one to beat in Dixie, and at the right is Coach Frank Thomas of Alabama.

(This is the first of a series of stories dealing with football prospects of major colleges and conferences.)

By KENNETH GREGORY

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Atlanta (AP)—It's just an old southern custom to favor Alabama's Crimson Tide for football supremacy.

Year in and year out the Tuscaloosa Terrors strike a new high in football superlatives, and 1935 finds them again highly regarded for the Southeastern conference championship.

Alabama and Tulane, undefeated co-champions of the "Big Thirteen" last season, attracted the attention of the gridiron world to Dixie through impressive victories in post-season battles.

The Crimson Tide rolled over 10 opponents on its regular schedule, and then annihilated Stanford in the Rose Bowl last January 1. The Green Wave won nine games and lost to Colgate by two touchdowns, but soundly whipped Temple in the inaugural Sugar Bowl game at New Orleans on New Year's day.

Losses Are Heavy
Losses from those great eleven were extensive. Alabama graduated many stars, including Dixie Howell, Joe Demjanovich, Captain Bill Lee, Don Hutson—the latter two all-America players—Charlie Marr and Bob Ed Morrow. Every athlete who started for Tulane against Temple played his final collegiate contest.

One could hardly expect a team as powerful and resourceful as Alabama of 1934, which scored 22 points in 15 minutes against Stanford, will come forward this fall. Nor is it likely that Tulane's last crew will be duplicated.

The general belief, among the experts, however, is that all southern teams will be improved, yet Alabama again is the consensus choice to rule the conference.

From its backfield the Crimson Tide lost Howell and Demjanovich. From the line went two hawkey guards, Marr and Morrow; Hutson, a sensational end; and Captain Lee.

Tulane lost such outstanding players as Joe Loftin, captain and fullback; Monk Simons, halfback; Lefty Brownson and John McDaniel, quarterbacks; Homer Robinson, all-southeastern center; George Tessier and Bob Simon, guards; Bob Tessier, tackle, and two ends, Dick Hardy and Charlie Kyle.

Despite this heavy evacuation, the loss may not be as severe as it might seem. There were understudies available for most every starting player and a good crop of freshmen.

However, the Greenies may be a year away from an all-victorious season.

The conclusion is that Tennessee, Louisiana State and Georgia will prove stronger threats to the favored Alabamians than Tulane.

TAKE SPOTLIGHT IN SPORTS PARADE

These stellar stars commanded outstanding attention at the national tennis championships nearest an end at Forest Hills, L. Mrs. Voss Leads In Qualifying Round

Displaying the same form which has carried her to victory in a number of invitation golf tournaments this season, Mrs. Clarence T. Voss, wife of Supervisor Voss of Phoenix, playing under the Rip Van Winkle Club colors posted an 86 to lead a small but select field in the qualifying round of the Northeastern New York women's golf championship on the Troy Country Club course today.

Mrs. Voss, runnerup in last year's title match at Mohawk Golf Club was out in 42 and home in 44 to beat Mrs. James Reynolds of the Antlers, Amsterdam, the defending champion, by two strokes for medal honors.

Mrs. Reynolds, the former Mary Lord, duplicated Mrs. Voss' card on the backstretch but required two more strokes on the outward path. These two players were the only ones to break 90 in the qualifying test as most of the scores were skyhigh in the face of a brisk wind which swept across the course. Third place went to Mrs. Darwin Anderson of the Edison Club of Schenectady, with 94, and Mrs. H. M. MacLagish of Mohawk, former president of the Northeastern New York Women's Golf Association chalked up a 95 to tie with Miss Betty Mendleson of Colonie Country Club. All players with a score of 105 or better went in the first division and the remainder went into a second division.

Mrs. Voss went over par on five holes of the outgoing stretch, equalled perfect figures on three holes and bagged a birdie on one hole. On the incoming stretch she equalled par on the 10th, 11th, 12th, 14th, 16th and 18th holes but went over par on the 13th, 15th and 17th holes. In feature matches today, Mrs. Voss will go against Miss Dehant and Mrs. Edwards and Mrs. Reynolds will clash. The Voss-Dehant match was scheduled for morning.

Helen Hull Jacobs Defends Her Title

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 11 (AP).—Helen Hull Jacobs of Berkeley, Calif., risks her three-won national tennis singles crown against Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan of Brookline, Mass., today.

Another victory would mean highest glory for Miss Jacobs, who has failed twice in three title bids the year. She would be the only official four-time winner, Mrs. Molla Blye, staid Mallory's tenure through 1919 having included the 1917 championship, which was classed as a patriotic tournament.

Miss Jacobs and Mrs. Fabyan met in the final a year ago, with the Californian winning 61, 6-4. They are scheduled to start today's contest for the best of three sets at 3:15 p. m. (Eastern Standard Time).

Miss Jacobs is keen for victory. She won the Egyptian championship and then failed in the French and all-England tournaments. In the latter she was beaten in an historic three-set match by her arch-rival, Helen Wills Moody. She's anxious to retain the American title in order to regain some of the prestige lost in the Moody match.

Before they take the court, the semi-finals of the men's championship will be played. The combatants are Fred Perry of England and Wilmer Allison, and Sidney B. Wood, Jr., and Bryan M. (Bity) Grant, Jr.

It will be the third meeting of Perry, the defending champion, and Allison in the last 12 months.

Miss Peppie Rosario, a protégé of Kenny's, will also perform on the ten foot diving board at the lake.

No admission will be charged and the public is invited to attend.

This exhibition will be held, rain or shine, in the afternoon and will close the swimming season at Williams Lake.

State Drive Against Pneumonia Planned

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 11 (AP)—An intensive drive to reduce the pneumonia mortality rate in New York through prompt diagnosis and serum treatments was organized today by the State Medical Society.

The drive, it was decided yesterday at a conference of 33 secretaries of county medical societies, will be carried on during the fall and winter months. The conference "enthusiastically endorsed" a proposal by Dr. Edward Whipple of Rochester to organize physicians in every locality to cooperate in their private practice to "educate the public to the importance of early recognition of the disease, as well as the prompt making of laboratory examinations to determine the type."

In explaining his proposal, Dr. Whipple said "it is accepted by authorities that the proper use of serum for the treatment of type one pneumonia results in a 40 to 50 per cent reduction in mortality."
"It is estimated," he added, "that in one year for which accurate pneumonia figures for the United States are available, 10,000 lives could have been saved in this one type of pneumonia alone."

Ethiopia Follows 'Fighting Emperor'

Haile Selassie, Man Of Modern Ideas, Heads Own Troops

By CHARLES NORMAN.
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)
A ruler who went up in the first airplane he ever saw, to the consternation of his entourage, sits on the traditional throne of the Queen of Sheba. He is Haile Selassie, a kindly, studious prince whose eyes in these troubled days are on his borders.

It was a warring emperor, with progressive ideas, who impressed Ethiopia indelibly on Europe's consciousness.

Menelik II, originally king of Shoa, subdued a number of neighboring tribes and races and in 1889 proclaimed himself emperor of Ethiopia. His armies defeated the Sudanese and the Italians, inflicting on the latter at Adowa a blow which still rankles.

It was his negotiations which led to the construction of the railroad from Djibouti to Addis Ababa, sole outlet to the sea of the black empire. Robert P. Skinner, U. S. Commissioner at Marseille in 1904, called Djibouti "the natural inlet and outlet of Abyssinian commerce."

Ras Tafari Takes Throne.
Menelik's death in 1913 left the empire in the hands of a weakling boy ruler, Lij Yasu, whose leanings toward the Moslems led him to be deposed in 1916. Thereupon, Zauditu, daughter of Menelik, became empress, ruling jointly with Ras Tafari, who was named Prince Regent and Heir Apparent.

Zauditu died in 1930 and Ras Tafari proclaimed himself emperor as Haile Selassie. He has been described as a brave man who keeps himself constantly in condition to order to be able to lead his troops in the field should war come.

He also is described as a man with a kindly smile, deeply studious, fluent in French and with a wide knowledge of Europe's history and the development of its countries. He is an indefatigable worker, whose hours are from 7 a. m. to 10 p. m.

Climate Ideal.
The climate of his capital, Addis Ababa, is said by Europeans to be nearly perfect—bright, cool because of its altitude and always fanned by breezes from the surrounding mountains.

Lakes abound, and because of one of them, Great Britain has a stake in Ethiopia.

Emperor Haile Selassie I, fighting ruler of Ethiopia, "whose eyes these troubled days are on his borders."

It is Lake Tsana, 7,000 feet above sea level, with an area of 50 square miles and a depth said to reach 600 feet.

Through this lake flows the principal river of Abyssinia, the Abai or Blue Nile, which joins the White Nile at Khartoum.

Britons cast apprehensive eyes toward Lake Tsana, principal fountainhead of the Egyptian Nile, whose flood waters rule over the crops of that fertile basin.

England's Interest.
If war comes, and the modern Roman legions move to attack Ethiopia, the fate of Lake Tsana will cast a shadow over one of the richest portions of Britain's African empire, the Sudan.

Talk of "sanctions" and economic boycotts now heard in England revolves in large part about this important lake. Equally important, and seemingly in the lap of the war god, is the effect of an Italian military campaign in Africa on Britain's black colonies.

The United States has signed three treaties with Addis Ababa. A commercial treaty, promulgated in 1914, was proclaimed in 1920, in English and Amharic, official tongue of Ethiopia. In 1929 two treaties, on arbitration and conciliation, were signed at Washington and Addis Ababa.

Ethiopia is also a signatory of the Briand-Kellogg peace pact, to which Italy's signature is likewise added.

Flower, Fruit and Vegetable Show at St. Remy on Friday

Plans for the forthcoming flower, fruit and vegetable show at St. Remy are well under way, with Mrs. Hermon A. Keller as the very efficient and enthusiastic chairman of the committee on arrangements.

The show will be held at the St. Remy Reformed Church, Friday afternoon and evening. It will be the third annual show held by the St. Remy society. The others have proven popular but it is expected that this will greatly surpass any that have gone before. Well known growers have been invited to participate and a fine exhibition by both professional and amateur growers is promised.

The exhibit of flowers will be held in the Sunday school room of the church. Fruits and vegetables will be shown in the church shed, which has been transformed into a veritable forest under the direction of Mrs. Kelley.

In addition to the exhibition proper the Ladies' Aid Society of the church will serve a cafeteria supper, service beginning at 5:30. At 8 o'clock the members of the Rifton 4-H Club will give an entertainment program which undoubtedly will be well worth listening to.

Sisterhood Dinner October 23.
The Sisterhood of Temple Emanuel, at its last meeting chose Wednesday, October 23, as the date for its annual beef steak dinner. It will be held in the social hall of the Temple on Abbeel street. The patronage of the public is solicited and will be appreciated.

HIGHLAND

Highland, Sept. 11.—The sewer contractor expects now to complete the digging by October first. Work on the New Falls road is finished as the town board decided not to extend the sewer beyond the water district which ends at George W. Goudy's line at Pratt's pond. There is still 200 feet on Church street. Machines are now working on Grove and Meadow streets and Brinckerhoff avenue off Maple avenue is yet to be done.

Ledyard Ball, who has reconsidered his resignation as scoutmaster, was present at the Lions Club meeting Monday evening with Francis Rheel and Philip DiStasi and the young scouts gave an account of their recent week's trip through the New England states. There was a small attendance owing to several members being out of town.

There were about 75 men of the Highland Hose Co. who attended the clambake Sunday at the Henry Erichsen farm on the North road. Mr. Erichsen superintended the bake which was said to be the best ever. Some games and stunts furnished entertainment in the afternoon.

Mrs. Emma Bradt drove to New Jersey Tuesday to bring her mother back. Mrs. Emma Gray has been spending the summer with relatives. A four some of bridge met Monday afternoon with Mrs. George Dean.

A corn roast was held Sunday evening on the Samuel Mott farm on the Milton road with the Misses Marian Williams, Leah Bradt, Barbara Merritt, Elizabeth Young, Messrs. Arthur Williams, Samuel Mott, Roger Merritt, John Battin, Robert Cunningham of Woodstock, who was accompanied by friends from St. Louis and Florida.

Mrs. Willard Ide Pierce, a former resident, was the guest last week of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hamilton on her way home from the Adirondacks to her home on Long Island.

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Wadlin returned Monday noon from their wedding trip to England. They had lunch with Mr. and Mrs. William H. Maynard and dinner with Mrs. Wadlin's mother, Mrs. Mabel Hasbrouck, and then went to their newly furnished home on White street. Their marriage took place on August 8.

Walter R. Seaman with Edmund Carpenter of Marlborough left Sunday on a motor trip to Cape Cod. Harry Vanderpoort is taking this week as vacation from his position in the First National Bank.

Mrs. F. W. Bedell returned to her home in Freeport, L. I., on Monday after a week spent with Mrs. Rose Seaman.

Miss Lois Williams and Robert Muller, two of last year's high school graduates, entered the New Falls Normal Tuesday morning. Others who entered last year are the Misses Ethel Swift, Kerla Colyer, Josephine Cardana, Ann Matthews, and Jack Abella.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Furman returned Friday from a two weeks visit with relatives in Puttville. The U. D. Society will meet Saturday afternoon with Mrs. Martha C. Schantz.

Taking post graduate work in high school are Philip DeStasi, Robert Dean, Helen Keat and Rita Abornard. The opening meeting of Highland was held Monday evening in the high school assembly room, and was presided over by the president, Mrs. Emma Bradt. In the absence of the secretary, Miss Marie Van Wormer, Mrs. Gladys Mears acted for her. Mrs. Bradt read the officers for this year beginning with Mrs. Gladys Mears, vice president; Mrs. Philip Wilkoff, second vice president; Mrs. Parker Decker, third vice president; Mrs. Herbert Campbell, fourth vice president; Mrs. F. Winchester, fifth vice president; Mrs. Vincent Gaffney, treasurer; Miss Marie Van Wormer, recording secretary; Mrs. James Swift, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Clarence Rathgeb, financial chairman; Mrs. Beatrice Grimm, program chairman; Mrs. Bertram Cottine, membership chairman; Mrs. Gladys Mears, press and publicity. The chairman of the hospitality committee is yet to be appointed. The treasurer's report gave a balance on hand of $55.79, of which $25 will be used to send the delegate to the state convention. The flag was awarded to the fifth grade for the coming month. Miss June Reynolds gave two piano numbers, "Clair de Lune," Debussy; "To Spring," Greig. Milo F. Winchester showed reels of moving pictures which he took the first of July of the flood area in central New York. Mr. Winchester left here on a dry sunny morning for Ithaca to attend summer school at Cornell. At Phoenixia he encountered the first of a hard rain, at Delhi he was forced to retrace his steps to avoid badly washed roads and that was the beginning of a long day's ride. Instead of arriving between 4 or 5 o'clock it was 10 o'clock when he reached Ithaca after traveling 100 miles extra, and then he could not reach several places to remain for the night. His pictures covered the vicinity of Trumansburg, Marathon and Watkins Glen. He gave the cause of the torrential down-pour as high pressure clouds working east to be met by low pressure coming up from the south. Whereas five inches of rain was heavy this amounted to thirteen inches. He also showed pictures of Cornell buildings and campus taken in colors. Mr. Winchester has developed a great many films taken on his trips locally and in the west. He was given many thanks for his part of the program.

Parent-Teacher Association
